Rules for Rubik's 3x3x3 cube competition:

- 1) Competitors should not write any notes or in any way use an aid to help memorizing the cube. This must be done entirely by brainpower, no help allowed!
- 2) The timing measures only the amount of time it takes to solve the cube. Competitors may take an unlimited amount of time for memorizing the cube, however competitors must do this in one sitting and may not spread it over a few days. Times must be accurate to the hundredth of a second. It is recommended that someone else time the solving portion of the competitor's solve.
- 3) Should the competitor be forced to time him/herself, he/she may stop the timer upon completing the cube, while still wearing the blindfold. In this case the time is to be recorded exactly as shown on the timing device and must be accurate to the hundredth of a second. Should the competitor fail to actually stop the timer and notice this upon removing the blindfold, he/she must then stop the timer and record the time exactly as shown.
